Interested in maternal and reproductive health? Interested in cross-culturally improving support that women receive during labor and delivery? If so, consider an internship at the Hospital de la Mujer in Puebla, Mexico during the summer of 2013.

Overview: This summer internship’s activities include supporting women during labor and delivery as a birth doula, helping to train hospital staff on how to provide labor support and shadowing OB/GYNs and labor and delivery nurses at the hospital.

Funding: This unpaid internship is applicable for Praxis funding.

Requirements: Student must speak at least intermediate-level Spanish and be trained as a birth doula*.

*If not trained as a birth doula, there is an opportunity at the end of January to become doula-trained. Students who partake in the January training are eligible for the internship. Please see following link for more information: http://www.birthdoulaworkshop.com/Birth-Doula.html.

To apply: Please send resume and cover letter to Karisa Klemm at karklemm@gmail.com by January 14, 2013.

To learn more about the internship, please attend an info session on Thursday, December 6th at 7:15 pm in Campus Center Room 205. You can also e-mail Karisa Klemm at karklemm@gmail.com with questions.
